AREA I: VISION, MISSION, GOALS AND OBJECTIVES

The Area of Vision, Mission, Goals and Objectives (VMGO) is the most fundamental of all the ten (10) areas to be surveyed. Everything in the Institution is justified only to the extent that it realizes its vision and mission. It is essential therefore, for the Institution to formulate the vision and mission which should be the bases of all its operations. The institution is judged by the degree to which they are attained, not in comparison with others.

A. Statement of Vision, Mission, Goals and Objectives

The Vision is the state the Institution hopes to become in the future. The MGO represents the hierarchy of aims of Institution. The Mission reflects the mandate/aim of the whole state university or state college. The Goals are the aims at the hierarchical structure below the institutional level (the academic unit/institute/school); and the objectives are the aims at the program level, i.e., what the program hopes to achieve.

The Institution shall define its mission in accordance with its legal and educational development mandate and the thrusts of the Government.

The program outcomes are the foci of program accreditation. These are the competencies (knowledge and skills), values and other attributes, which the institution hopes their graduates shall acquire to enable them to compete for employment, locally and internationally.

B. Dissemination and Acceptability

It is expected that the institution disseminates and works for the acceptance of the Vision, Mission, Goals and Objectives by the stakeholders. In order to facilitate awareness and acceptance, it is a good practice that the faculty, non-teaching staff, students, linkages, the community, and other stakeholders are involved in the formulation, review and/or revision of the VMGO.

An outcome-based assessment will focus on the extent to which the program objectives are attained as shown in the outcomes. Thus, there must be a common understanding and acceptance of the end results of the program by both the faculty and the students.

It should be demonstrated that the program objectives (outcome) are consistent with the College goals; and the College goals with the Mission of the Institution. On a long-term perspective, the accomplishment of the Mission will lead to the realization of the Vision of the Institution.

The following documents, additional information and exhibits will be useful in evaluating this Area, and should be made available at the Accreditation Center:

1. Billboards installed for the purpose of disseminating the Vision, Mission, Goals and Objectives (VMGO);
2. Bulletin of Information;
3. Bulletin, brochures, catalog, manuals, print, and other media;
4. Documents/Materials containing statements of VMGO;
5. Minutes of meetings conducted to formulate, review or revise VMGO;
6. Programs and activities showing student's participation in the dissemination of the VMGO;
7. Research work/study conducted showing awareness and acceptance of the VMGO;
8. SUC Charter; and
9. University/College Code.

AREA II: FACULTY

The standard or quality of an institution or program is greatly measured by the qualifications of its faculty. In this light, the faculty should be composed of competent members in terms of academic qualifications, experience and professional expertise. In addition, they should manifest desirable personal qualities and high level of professionalism.

To be effective, faculty members should be properly compensated and taken care of. They must be given opportunities for continuous personal and professional development. A policy of fair and equitable distribution of teaching assignments and workload should be practiced. Likewise, objective and clear promotion criteria/scheme should be adopted by the Institution.

A. Academic Qualifications and Professional Experience

The faculty should have the appropriate academic preparation and experience relevant to the program. They must be holders of appropriate degrees. In case of any deficiency, they should possess relevant and/or compensatory qualifications. Moreover, they must be licensed (where applicable) if they are handling professional subjects. They must exhibit competence as evidenced by their professional license, performance evaluation, consultancy, and scholarly works.

B. Recruitment, Selection and Orientation

Recruitment and selection of the faculty are among the important activities undertaken by an institution. Success in the implementation of an academic program depends to a great extent on the quality of the faculty.

The Institution should have an effective system of recruitment and selection of the most qualified faculty. The system may include the conduct of a psychologist test, interview, demonstration teaching, etc. The process is a participative effort of the dean, chairperson, faculty representative/s, and other designated officials. New faculty members must be given orientation on the Institution‘s VMGO and policies as well as on their responsibilities and privileges.

C. Faculty Adequacy and Loading

The Institution should have an adequate number of faculty with the appropriate qualifications to handle the courses offered by a particular program. Teaching assignment/loading should be based on the major/minor fields of specialization of the faculty. Their workload should allow them time to prepare lessons, score papers and other course requirements, advise students, conduct research and extension activities, and perform other instruction-related activities and institutional service.

D. Rank and Tenure

The Institution should implement a system of promotion in rank and salary based on existing policies and guidelines. Faculty members must be informed of the Institutional policies on probation, extension, renewal or termination of contract, promotion, and retirement.

E. Faculty Development

The Institution should have a well-funded Faculty Development Program. The program should include criteria for the selection of scholars/grantees, and opportunities/study privileges, research grants, training, etc., that are available. Faculty members should be encouraged to join professional organizations and to continuously upgrade their knowledge and competence by participating in in-service training activities such as seminars, conferences, workshops, etc.

F. Professional Performance and Scholarly Works

Teaching is the main function of the faculty and performance evaluation system should be based on objective criteria. The faculty should also be involved in the dissemination of knowledge, innovations, and technologies in national and international fora and in the development of instructional materials such as modules, software, teach wares, multi-media devices, etc. Moreover, they are expected to render expert services and consultancies.

G. Salaries, Fringe Benefits and Incentives

The salary scale of the faculty follows the DBM Salary Standardization Scheme and the most recent government issuances on compensation. Fringe benefits of faculty members such as leave privileges and financial assistance should be embodied in the Institution's Code or Manual in consonance with CSC and other government policies and guidelines. Overloads are appropriately compensated. Outstanding performance (publication, reproduction, scholarly works, etc.) of faculty should be recognized and incentives be given correspondingly.

H. Professionalism

Professionalism should be practiced based on the SUC Code, the Civil Service Code of Ethical Standards for Government Officials and Employees (RA 6713), and the Code of Ethics for the Profession. Academic freedom should be judiciously exercised.

The following documents, additional information and exhibits will be useful in evaluating this Area, and should be made available, preferably at the Accreditation Center:

1. Board Resolutions on rank and tenure, and others that concern the faculty;
2. Bulletins/display boards where important legislations, memoranda, directives and circulars on fringe benefits are posted;
3. CMO and other pertinent policies and guidelines;
4. Class Records;
5. Class Schedule for the current semester and for the two (2) preceding semesters;
6. Code of Professional Ethics/R.A. 6713 and other pertinent CSC issuances;
7. Faculty Development Program;
8. Faculty Journal;
9. Faculty Manual;
10. Faculty Performance and Rating System;
11. Faculty Profile;
12. List of faculty and the training, seminars, and conferences they attended (indicate the date and place);
13. Merit System and Promotion Plan;
14. Minutes and attendance record of faculty meetings;
15. Minutes of meetings of the Selection Board;
16. Personnel records of disciplinary/administrative cases, if any;
17. Plantilla of Faculty;
18. Qualification Standards;
19. Records of termination cases, if any;
20. Samples of results of recruitment and selection process conducted showing the names of applicants; and
21. Issuances on Compensation, Fringe Benefits and Incentives.

AREA III: CURRICULUM AND INSTRUCTION

Curriculum and instruction occupy center stage in any educational program. These seek to research, develop, and implement curriculum changes that enhance student achievement within and outside of institutions. How students learn and the best ways to educate deserve much consideration.

The quality of these two allied areas determined primarily the prestige and strength of the Institution. Areas of concern are on six parameters. These are encompassing which are: a) curriculum and program of studies; b) instructional process; methodologies and learning opportunities; c) assessment of academic performance; d) classroom management; e) graduation requirements; and f) administrative support for effective instruction.

A. Curriculum and Program of Studies

The curriculum must have content and design that will enable the students to achieve intended learning outcomes. It should work towards the attainment of the course objectives. It should include recent developments in teaching and learning techniques, and other attributes necessary for employment, such as teamwork, communication, leadership skills, etc.

B. Instructional Processes, Methodologies and Learning Opportunities

The instructional process should provide learning opportunities for the students. It should also make use of different strategies, methodologies and techniques. Learning opportunities could be in the following areas: 1) teaching and learning 2) professional development; and 3) collaboration.

C. Assessment of Academic Performance

Assessment is an integral part of a curricular program for purpose of continuous improvement. It is used to demonstrate how well the program carries out the mission of the institution. The methods used for assessment should demonstrate reliable relationships between the educational experiences (curriculum) and the expected/outcomes. Assessment may be done before, during, and after the implementation of the curricular program.

D. Management of Learning

The rules and practices relating to classroom management should be conducive to effective instruction and should be carefully observed. Measures should be taken to ensure punctual attendance of faculty members in their scheduled classes. The rule on absences should follow the institution’s policy. Records of these absences should be kept.

E. Graduation Requirements

Requirements for graduation are made clear and well-known to the students. Research, practicum, on-the-job training and other activities prescribed in the curriculum as requirements for graduation should be strictly implemented to further improve quality of graduates.

F. Administrative Support for Effective Instruction

Quality instruction should be sustained by providing the required instructional materials like syllabi, assessment instruments, etc., to make teaching learning meaningful and fruitful. To ensure effective instruction, it is necessary that students and faculty are punctual in their respective classes. Likewise, this is sustained through utilization of updated/enhanced instructional materials like syllabi, examination questions and departmental examinations; provisions for substitutions and special arrangements for absences or leaves of faculty members; and supervisory visits to monitor academic activities.

It is also desirable that researches on correlational studies between faculty performance and student achievements be undertaken.

The following documents, additional information and exhibits will be useful in evaluating this Area, and should be made available, preferably at the Accreditation Center:

1. Grading system;
2. CHED policies and standards;
3. Copies of instructional materials actually used;
4. Course curriculum
5. Course syllabi;
6. Records of faculty performance evaluation done by students, peers, superiors, etc.;
7. Records of class observations together with the evaluation criteria used;
8. Records of conducted remedial, special or make-up classes;
9. Samples of old course syllabi used in the last three (3) years;
10. Samples of student projects and term papers in the current school year;
11. Samples of teacher-made tests in the current school year;
12. System of accrediting, validating, substituting and determining equivalent courses/subjects taken in other institutions; and
13. System to ensure quality in the formulation, monitoring and review of the curriculum.

AREA IV: SUPPORT TO STUDENTS

Students are the raison d' etre for the establishment of learning institutions. Thus, the school has the responsibility to support the family and other social institutions in the development of the total personality of the student. Towards this end, a program of student services is designed as an integral part of institutional effectiveness. All activities should be well-planned and implemented to assist the student to attain his/her maximum potential and become a worthy contributor in his/her social environment. Student support and services complement the Academic Program.

A. Student Services Program (SSP)

There should be a well-organized, properly administered and adequately staffed Student Services Program (SSP). Such a program should be provided with adequate services, physical facilities and adequate resources to attain its objectives. A program of activities and services such as Student Welfare, Student Development, Institutional Student Programs and Services should be known and accepted by the administrators, faculty, and students.

B. Student Welfare

The Student Welfare Services are basic services and programs needed to ensure and promote the well-being of students. These include Information, Orientation and Awareness, Guidance and Counseling, Career and Placement, Economic Enterprise Development, and Student Handbook Development.

A well-planned and functional Student Welfare Program directed towards the welfare and total personality development of students should be provided by the Institution.

C. Student Development

Student Development is composed of programs and activities designed for the enhancement and deepening of leadership skills and social responsibility. This includes student organizations and activities, professional organization or societies, special interests, Leadership Training Programs, Student Council/Government, Student Discipline, Student Publication/Media.

A well-planned and well-implemented Student Development Program and activities would contribute to the development and enhancement of leadership effectiveness of students in the following:

- Governance
- Discipline
- Publication

D. Institutional Student Programs and Services

These are programs and activities that would facilitate the delivery of essential services to the students such as: a) Admission; b) Scholarship and Financial Assistance; c) Food; d) Health e) Security and Safety; f) Housing and Residential Services; g) Multi-Faith; h) Foreign Students; i) services for Students with Special Needs; j) culture and arts; k) sports; l) social; and m) community involvement.

A well-organized and well-implemented essential service to the students would result to:

- Improved admission, safety and security, housing, health and food, and foreign student services.
- Effective scholarship and financial assistance to deserving students
- An environment conducive to free expression of one's religious orientation
- Opportunities to develop and enhance talents, abilities for appreciation, promotion and conservation of national culture and multi-cultural heritage, physical fitness and well-being, social awareness, and meaningful contribution to nation building.

E. Research, Monitoring and Evaluation

The Institution should encourage the students to conduct research on student affairs and services programs. The results should be disseminated and utilized, monitoring and evaluation of student affairs and services can serve as feedback mechanism to ensure sustainability and effectiveness of the Student Affairs and Services program.

The following documents, additional information and exhibits will be used in evaluating this Area, and should be made available, preferably at the Accreditation Center:

1. Annual Reports;
2. Copy of Budget for Student Services;
3. Copy of Student Services Program;
4. Guidance Manual;
5. Guidance Program;
6. List of recognized student organizations and their programs;
7. Organizational Chart of Student Affairs Unit;
8. Research studies on student's needs, problems, profile, etc.;
9. School Organ;
10. Student Handbook;
11. Student Services: staff, positions, and qualifications;
12. Testing programs/instruments; and
13. Updated Alumni Directory.

AREA V: RESEARCH

Research is an avenue through which new knowledge is discovered, applied or verified and through which appropriate technologies are generated. Thus, it is a basic requirement for an educational institution to have a firmly established research and development program. Its thrusts and priorities should be congruent with those identified in the development plans of regional and national R and D-oriented agencies such as NEDA, DOST, CHED, etc.

The institutional leadership in research should be proactive and developmental in orientation. It must provide adequate and sustained budget allocation annually for the Academic Unit. Adequate physical facilities, laboratory equipment and supplies for research should be provided. The Academic Unit has to maintain strong research linkages with various R and D agencies locally and internationally.

A. Priorities and Relevance

The institution shall conceptualize and implement researches (preferably multidisciplinary and collaborative in nature) in consonance with institutional, regional and national priorities. The Institution's research should be consistent with its priorities and those emphasized in the Agenda of the DOST, CHED, NEDA, etc.

B. Funding and Other Resources

The Institution shall be encouraged to allocate fund for research regularly. Resources from various local and foreign agencies should be explored to augment the Institution's appropriation. In-house reviews shall be conducted periodically. Research results and disseminated to local and national instrumentalities interested in collaborating with academic institutions.

C. Implementation, Monitoring Evaluation and Utilization of Research Results/ Outputs

The faculty are required to undertake or conduct research especially in their fields of specialization to supplement and improve the teaching-learning process and satisfy one of the four-fold mandated functions of the Institution. To sustain the quality of researches, incentives through honoraria, grant of service credits, and work-load adjustments shall be accorded to the faculty who are conducting researches and publishing their outputs. Likewise, continuous upgrading of faculty and research staff is undertaken by the institution to enhance research capabilities and competence. The conduct of department researches shall be encouraged in addition to specialized researches undertake by the faculty. At best, a collective and/or collaborative research undertaken by the Institution/Academic Unit must be defined and focused. Moreover, completed researches shall be pilot-tested and eventually utilized.

D. Publication and Dissemination

Researches whether on the proposal, on-going or completed stage may be published in the proper media and well disseminated to target clientele. The institution implements incentive schemes for publication and paper presentation of research outputs in national and international fora.

The following documents, additional information and exhibits will be useful in evaluating this Area, and should be made available, preferably at the Accreditation Center:

1. Approved budget allocation indicating the source and amount of funds;
2. Copies of Memoranda of Agreement;
3. Inventory of research facilities;
4. List of samples of research outputs/reports for the last two (2) years;
5. List of researches completed during the last two (2) years and some samples;

6. List of technical support provided by administration;
7. Proceedings of research in-house reviews;
8. Profile of research staff;
9. Published and unpublished researches in printed form;
10. Research Journal;
11. Research linkages;
12. Research Manual; and
13. Research Program incorporating researches of students.

AREA VI – EXTENSION AND COMMUNITY INVOLVEMENT

The extension function makes the Institution's presence felt in the community. It involves the application of existing and new knowledge and technology and those generated in the Institution to improve the quality of life of the people. Through the extension program, people are empowered with appropriate knowledge, attitudes and skills. Thus, extension services cater to various aspects of the community life, e.g., economic growth, promotion of health, environmental management, and social transformation.

The institution plans and implements as extension program that is need-based and client-based. This program should have a budgetary support and other resources allocation. The faculty members may serve as experts, consultants, organizers, facilitators, coordinators, service providers, and change agents in the community as forms of extension and community involvement.

Careful planning and coordination with other community outreach agencies should be considered to avoid duplication of services offered to the clientele.

A. Priorities and Relevance

Extension services are provided by the Academic Unit in response to the needs and urgent concerns of the community it serves. Likewise, it takes into consideration local, regional and national development thrusts. The services extended should be reflective of the Institution's vision, mission, goals and objectives.

B. Planning, Implementation, Monitoring and Evaluation

There is an extension unit which coordinates a functional extension program. Stakeholders, administration, faculty, and students are involved in the planning, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of extension activities. Multi-disciplinary or multi-sectoral approach is encouraged into the conduct of the various extension activities, including the assessment of the impact of each extension activity implemented for various clientele.

C. Funding and Other Resources

The extension program is provided regularly with a definite budget to ensure its sustainability. Funds, as well as material and service inputs from the Institution or from other agencies, are needed I the implementation of a viable extension program.

D. Community Involvement and Participation in the Institution's Activities

A harmonious and collaborative school-community relationship is a major factor in the life of an extension program. The community should be invited to participate in the planning, implementing, monitoring and evaluation of activities, as well as sourcing of funds and other resources.

The following documents, additional information and exhibits will be useful in evaluating this Area, and should be made available, preferably at the Accreditation Center:

1. Annual Reports;
2. Budgetary allocation for extension;
3. Community linkages;
4. Copies of Memoranda of Agreement;
5. Copies of Institutional and Academic Unit extension program;
6. Extension activity reports;
7. Extension Manual;
8. Monitoring and evaluation reports;
9. Needs assessment or survey results;
10. Organizational set-up of extension office/unit;
11. Photos of extension activities;
12. Roster of consultants/experts; and
13. Samples of packaged technologies.

AREA VII: LIBRARY

The library is the heart of any learning institution. It is a synergy of people, hardware and software whose purpose is to assist clients in using knowledge and technology to transform and improve their lives.

Information and knowledge are essential to the attainment of institutional goals. The ways in which they are selected, acquired, stored, accessed and distributed within the Institution will, in large measure, determine the success of teaching, research and other academic endeavors. The institution thrives on clear policies concerning access to, and provision of, information. Thus, the library must take an active role in the development and implement of these policies.

Each institution has a unique vision, mission, goals and objectives. These are influenced by its philosophy, geographical location and social responsibility. Similarly, as a subsystem of the institution, the library has a unique role to perform.

A. Administration

The library should be administered and supervised by a full-time, professional librarian with at least, a Master's degree in Library and Information Science under a functional organization set-up. It should be administered in a manner which allows and encourages the fullest and most effective use of available library resources.

The head librarian may have an academic rank (classified as academic non-teaching staff) and actively participates in curricular, instructional and research matters. A Library Board/Committee should serve as a conduct between the library and its users. It should work towards the continued development and improvement of library resources and services.

The head librarian should develop a long range plan. He/She must have a systematic and continuous program for evaluating library performances. He/She must prepare systems and procedures for library operation and utilization in coordination with administration, the faculty and the students.

B. Personnel

The library should have a sufficient staff of staff to organize and maintain the collection as well as to manage information and reference services for the clientele.

C. Collection Development, Organization and Preservation

The library's varied resources should be adequate to serve the institutions instructional and research needs. It must have a system of progressive development and growth in accordance with the Institutional Development Plan.

D. Services and Utilization

The overriding goal of the library is to provide services to the academic community. These services are measured by their effectiveness in meeting the users' needs.

E. Physical Set-up and Facilities

The library should provide adequate and appropriate space and facilities to serve the academic community. It should be strategically planned and functionally designed to allow for rearrangement and future expansion. A separate building for the library would be ideal.

F. Financial Support

The Library should have a separate, realistic and adequate budget to support its various activities and services. The budget proposal is prepared in consultation with the Library Board/Committee.

G. Linkages

A network of alliances/relations extending beyond the Institution could enhance the library services. These linkages may be customary, contractual or cooperative. In collaboration with other libraries, it participates in activities that could enhance the attainment of its objectives.

The following documents, additional information and exhibits will be useful in evaluating this Area, and should be made available, preferably at the Accreditation Center:

1. Comparative figures of total volumes of basic collection;
2. Composition and functions of the Library Committee;
3. Copy of library handbook, guide and internal procedures, etc.;
4. Library Development Plan for the nest 3-5 years;
5. Library Organizational Chart;
6. Library personnel's duties and responsibilities;
7. List of agencies with which the library has linkages. Include copies of MOA, letters donation, etc.;
8. List of classified library holdings other than books, journals and general references;
9. List of discarded or weeded-out books;
10. List of electronic resources (with description);
11. List of professional books for specific major fields (by particular subject and titles);
12. List of serials (including volume, number and date of publication);
13. Logbook of library users;
14. Memorandum Circular or Board Resolution on the establishment of the Library Advisory Board/Library Committee;
15. Properly-labeled floor plan of the library and its internal layout;
16. Standards for Philippine Libraries (recent);
17. Statistical reports on the use of books and other library resources in the three (3) years; and
18. Updated inventory of library furniture and equipment.

AREA VIII: PHYSICAL PLANT AND FACILITIES

The quality and adequacy of the physical plant and facilities of a learning institution determine to a large measure the successful implementation of its curricular programs. In a broad sense, physical plant and facilities include school campus, buildings and other physical infrastructures, equipment and services that complement institutional and program effectiveness.

A. Campus

The site should be located in a wholesome environment, safe from traffic and transportation hazards, sufficiently free from noise, dust, smoke, and other undesirable elements. It should be provided with adequate facilities for drainage and sewage disposal. It should be adequate to meet the needs of the present school population and its future expansion. The school should be accessible to present and anticipated school population by means of public and private transportation. It should have satisfactory road network and sidewalks.

The campus should be so planned that it would be adequate for the intellectual, social, physical and cultural interests of the Institution. It should be keep in good condition and physical appearance.

B. Buildings

The buildings should be functionally designed and constructed of strong and durable materials to withstand natural calamities like earthquakes, typhoons, and fire. Their design should be pleasing to the eye and in conformity with the surroundings. At the same time, these are imbued with the proper atmosphere conductive to learning. Likewise, there should be provisions for disabled persons.

They should anticipate accommodating future expansion needs. Entrance and exit points should be well-planned to insure safe and convenient mobility of the school population and the transacting public.

Stairways and fire exits should be adequate and standard in size and number, and conveniently located. No obstructions along the corridors impede the free flow of movement and physical activity.

C. Classrooms

The size and number of classrooms should be in accordance with the standards and sufficient to accommodate the student population. Classrooms should be adequately equipped with the required furniture, blackboards, and should have a pleasant atmosphere. Lighting, ventilation, general appearance, and acoustics should be satisfactory.

D. Offices, Staff and Function Rooms

Adequate provisions should be made for administrative offices, faculty rooms, and reception areas, where needed.

E. Assembly and Athletic Facilities

Group assembly facilities should have a seating capacity adequate to meet the needs of the Institution. These facilities should be designed with good acoustics and proper ventilation. Necessary facilities and equipment should be adequate and kept in good condition. Athletic facilities should be accessible to the students, and must be sufficient in number and variety, depending on the requirements of the school population. There should be suitable arrangements for athletic activities during the rainy season.

F. Medical and Dental Clinic

A medical and dental clinic should be properly set-up, strategically located, well-ventilated and lighted, screened, and provided with clean water supply. It should be spacious enough to accommodate the five (5) distinct sections: 1) reception area; 2) examination room; 3) treatment room; 4) dental section; and 5) rest/recovery room, separate for male and female. It should be provided with basic equipment, medical supplies, beds, cabinets, and linen.

G. Student Center

A Student Center is available where students can make wholesome interaction and listen to good music, play table games, watch TV programs, etc.

H. Food Services Unit/Canteen

Clean and sanitary food services unit/canteen must be set up and managed effectively. It should serve balanced yet affordable meals and snacks to the school community.

I. Accreditation Center

There should be a properly maintained and equipped Accreditation Center with necessary facilities.

J. Housing (Optional)

Housing should be maintained and provided with electricity and water. This should have proper drainage and waste disposal system.

The following documents, additional information and exhibits will be useful in evaluating this Area, and should be made available, preferably at the Accreditation Center:

1. Approved building plan for the dormitory/housing facilities indicating the function rooms;
2. Approved building plan indicating the existence of function rooms used for group assemblies by the program;
3. Approved building plans showing the floor areas of classrooms and shops used for group assemblies by the program.
4. Building plan and approved permits;
5. Campus development plan;
6. Certificate of ownership;
7. Copies of procedural guidelines on the proper use of function rooms;
8. File copies of approved request of students and personnel for the use of the function rooms;
9. Housing rules/admission requirements;
10. List of dormitory staff;
11. List of function rooms (such as audio-visual room, student hall, conference hall, cafeteria, music room, office for the college organizations, college paper, faculty lounge and comfort rooms);
12. List of physical facilities;
13. List of students and personnel presently accommodated;
14. Photocopies of office directly or indirectly used by the program (indoor and outdoor)
15. Physical plant map showing location of classrooms and laboratory rooms/shops used by the program;
16. Physical Plant map showing the location of administrative offices, faculty rooms, conference rooms, classrooms, laboratory rooms and reception areas;
17. Sets of materials/documents by program;
18. Site development plan; and
19. Vicinity map.

AREA IX: LABORATORIES

Laboratories are included in the support systems for any academic program. Broadly defined, they cover science laboratories, speech laboratories, demonstration farms, shops, and other facilities for practicum activities essential to the successful implementation of curricular programs inclusive of their use and functions.

A. Laboratories, Shops/Facilities

In general, facilities include well-equipped rooms which are adequately ventilated/air-conditioned, and lighted. The furniture are properly arranged. Safety devices and measures to cope with emergency situations are available. Facilities conform to accepted standards.

B. Equipment and Supplies

Certain courses require specific equipment, materials and supplies. The list of these equipment, materials and supplies should be included under the section on special provisions for the academic program. Apparatuses, tools and materials conform to specifications as required.

C. Maintenance

All laboratory equipment should be stored properly, maintained, and checked regularly to ascertain their good working condition.

D. Special Provisions

The special provisions should include the program requirements (listing of materials and equipment ad per CMO). There should be an approval Annual Procurement Plan (APP).

The following documents, additional information and exhibits will be useful in evaluating this Area, and should be made available, preferably at the Accreditation Center:

1. Approved building plans showing the location of laboratory rooms/shops utilized in the program;
2. Copies of lists of prescribed minimum requirements (CHED, PRC, etc.);
3. Copies of procedural guidelines on the proper use of equipment and safety devices posted in conspicuous places;
4. List of functional locally-improvised apparatuses (supported with pictures and manuals of operation);
5. List of laboratory equipment (apparatuses and tools) available for use in the program (indicate the models and specifications);
6. List of laboratory rooms/shops utilized in the program;
7. List of safety equipment and devices which are available within easy reach in case of emergency.
8. List of supplies and materials utilized in the program;
9. List of titles of experiments/projects in the course/program;
10. Maintenance system employed to ensure the good working condition in the equipment at all times;
11. Photocopies of laboratory rooms/shops (including the storeroom) showing the proper arrangement of fixtures and equipment; and
12. Photocopies of storeroom plans for chemicals and materials showing properly labeled containers, shelves and cabinets.

AREA X: ADMINISTRATION

The administration is the engine of the Institution in the attainment of its vision, mission, goals and objectives. It is concerned with the general affairs of the Institution and its organizational performance. Thus, the administration adopts institutional processes and ensures that said processes are satisfactorily implemented.

A. Organization

An educational institution should have a Governing Board of Regents/Trustees. This Board has the responsibility to formulate general policies. The policies should be implemented by a sufficient number of qualified officials duly appointed/designated for the purpose. A detailed description of the organizational set-up of the whole Institution under survey should be found in an official document.

B. Academic Administration

The area covers administrative and academic matters such as qualification of academic officials; recruitment and promotion of faculty and support staff; setting standards and targets; planning, implementing and monitoring of programs and other related activities; establishing linkages, partnerships and networking activities; professional growth development opportunities; proper use and maintenance of facilities, equipment, etc.; and generating resources and income and cost effective measures.

The quality of the curricular programs and the qualifications of the faculty to implement would determine the level of excellence attained by the Institution.

C. Student Administration

The following activities fall under this Area: admission and retention policies; registration; school fees; academic load, transfers, residence, course work, scholastic and graduation requirements, examination and grading system, scholarship/grants, shifting and adding/dropping of course, code of conduct and discipline, availability of a student handbook, and organization of the recorded data for statistical use.
